Housing

National Apprenticeship Service

Overview

Housing is one area where the needs of the community are dealt with head on. Each geographical area, from old industrial cities to sparsely populated rural areas, has a unique set of needs as housing stock and social conditions vary.

Housing professionals directly affect the living conditions of one in four households. Housing work covers a wide range of activities, depending on whether the service is being provided by the public sector, the independent and voluntary sectors or the private rented sector, and can include working with tenant groups to managing the design and development of new homes.

It is estimated that there are currently 650,000 to one million people working and volunteering in the housing and supported housing industry. Housing Associations and Registered Social Landlords, together with Local Authorities currently employ the largest number of housing staff.

Starting salary (once qualified) ranges from £14,000 - £20,000.

What is an Apprenticeship

An Apprenticeship is a mix of real work and learning. Apprentices earn a wage and get experience whilst working towards a number of qualifications. An Apprenticeship follows a Level 2 programme and can lead onto an Advanced Apprenticeship which is a Level 3 programme.
